

Indigenous Constitution of Western Canadian Regions

The Call:

It has become imperative that we form and adopt a constitution based upon our own verbal traditions and customs. The Mooniyah can not respect us in their courts as they have no written form of the laws which govern our hearts. We must band together and create two documents and imbue them with our force and our effect each and every generation; so that we may live in peace with the Mooniyah. These texts shall be translated into our language which we will remember and those texts shall be the authorized version of each nation that adopts this sacred document.

Each Nation will place it's seal on it every 25 years and will have the right, each generation to propose an amendment to a committee that will be in charge of the care of the document and if the nations agree unanimously it will be inserted into the document and re-adopted.

1. It is unlawful for us to enter Mooniyah courts but they must submit to our courts formed under the authority of the creator and governed by a number of our elders.
2. No laws or statutes formed by the Mooniyah courts or law shall be binding upon us for we determine everything in our lives.
3. We are self-governing and will determine our own destiny's way of life and security.
4. Have the right to our own limited forces to serve and protect our individual rights.
5. Have the right to our own servants and hereditary leaders which are defined by each individual family or tribe.
6. Have the right to our own family and determination of that.
7. The land is gifted to our care by the creator and its resources are a gift of our mother.
8. This constitution does not limit other rights not listed.
9. Have the right to treaty and trade with nations
10. The right to form our own institutions governed by this constitution and codes.
11. The right to defence of our families and tribes.
12. The right to pursuit of happiness so long as we do no harm.
13. The right to codify our own law.
14. The right to determine our borders
